FOOD PROJECT AT FRANKLIN

PLAN CONCEIVED BY MISS FRANCES HOLLIDAY.

CHILDREN LIKE IDEA

They Learn to Serve Meals and Work Out Menu.—A Drill in Values.

Who says children are not interested in real, life problems?

That person should quietly slip down to the Franklin School and observe the children in the third grade as they busily work on their foods project. The idea of a foods project was conceived by Miss Frances Holliday, supervisor of the summer classes at the Franklin School, and is being carried out under her direction by two college students who are doing practice teaching, Misses Oneta McClary and Morine Farmer.

The project is a study of foods. It is a branch of geography and was originally taken up in the geography class to prepare the students for their work next year. In the project, the students are studying why food is needed, a branch of physiology and hygiene, what foods are best and why, and many other things about the food they eat.

They have done their first map work in this project. They have studied where each item of food is most extensively grown, and with each one, they have taken an outline map of the United States and have filled in the states ranking high in the production of that particular item. After the project is finished, these maps will be cut apart and used as puzzle games.

The subject of home economics is also entering into this study, and is proving very popular with the students. They have made a study of menus and how to serve them, and by a vote of the children themselves, have planned the menu for a breakfast for themselves, and will serve it soon. They have studied the cooking of the food, economical buying, proper table setting, serving, and they have made a thorough study of table manners. At this breakfast, one child will act as hostess and another will serve the meal to the rest, who are to be guests.

The menu planned is as follows: sliced orange, bran with cream and sugar, toasted whole wheat bread, poached egg and a glass of milk. All articles that have to be bought will be bought by the children themselves, and the cost for the eight children will be figured and apportioned among them. When they have finished breakfast, they will make a more thorough study of dinner and supper and how they can be most economically served.

It will be seen that not only the subjects of geography and hygiene enter into this study, but much language, arithmetic, reading, home economics, and other subjects as well. The project was started at the beginning of the summer term and only one-half hour each day has been spent on it.

In commenting on the interest of the children in such an undertaking, Miss Holliday said, "You would be surprised to know how much the children like it; so much better than the same subject matter taught without the motivation."

The following pupils are enrolled in the third grade at the Franklin School and are taking part in the project: Blanche Moody, Jeanne Johnston, Jean Myers, Mary Frances Barrock, Hugh Graff, Robert Childress, Charles Vance, and John Watkins. The Franklin School is a demonstration school for the State Teachers College.

Wheat Is Damaged by Wind as Well as Hail

Ret Corrough, living near Arkoe, reported this morning that the storm of Wednesday evening did considerable damage to his wheat. The high wind hurt the wheat more than the hail, he said.

The rain fell in such torrents that it filled a small gully, running through his farm, higher than he had ever seen it before.

Miss Beulah Mutz went to Hopkins this afternoon to spend the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Art Bonar. Miss Mutz taught the Prairie Star school near Hopkins last year. She has been elected to teach the Lasher school the coming year.

G. R. Ellison's Work Wins Commendation

Opinions of New Supreme Court Commissioner Are Described as Strikingly Superior.

Though G. R. Ellison, commissioner of the Supreme Court, has been on the bench for only a short period, his work seems to have attracted flattering attention. He has handed in several opinions, concurred in all by the other members of the court. Two of the opinions have made their appearance in the July 6th issue of a weekly law publication, known as the Southwestern Reporter.

It is said these opinions as to clearness of expression and refinement of style are a strikingly superior production.

Mr. Ellison is commissioner of division No. 1 of the Supreme Court. This division has charge of civil and equity cases only.

HEAD STRIKES R. R. BRIDGE

CORNELIUS MOSSEY, BRAKEMAN, THROWN UNCONSCIOUS.

ON TOP FREIGHT CAR

Young Man Fails to Clear Wabash Overhead Crossing At Conception This Morning.

Cornelius Mossey, 21 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Mossey Conception, head brakeman of the Chicago and Great Western freight train number 60, was knocked unconscious at 2 o'clock this morning when the freight car on which he was standing passed under the overhead Wabash bridge at Conception Junction and Mossey's head struck the bridge.

The brakeman was missed when the engineer waited for him to open a switch and he failed to appear. He was found unconscious on the top of the car. It is thought that he sat down on the car, thinking that he would clear the bridge, but it was a higher car than usual and his head struck the bridge.

Mossey was rushed to the Sisters' hospital at St. Joseph and had not regained consciousness late today. It is thought he suffered concussion of the brain.

Writer's Club Has Meeting at College

Misses Lulu Mae Curfman and Dora Scheffsky Present Original Work —Members Wanted.

The Writers' Club at the State Teachers College held its regular bimonthly meeting at the off period this morning. Original work was presented by Misses Lulu Mae Curfman and Dora Scheffsky.

This organization was started last winter with the following persons, all of them majoring or minoring in English, as charter members: Misses Ruth Clayton, Eva Wilson, Lulu Mae Curfman, Dora Sheffsky, Dorothy England, Helen Cottier, Helen Qualls, Ruby Goodvin, and Neva Adams. One new member, Miss Helen Tilberry, has been added to the club roll this summer.

The club is sponsored by the English faculty at the College, and has for its patroness Miss Laura B. Schmitz of eChillicothe, a member of th Board of Regents of the State Teachers College. At the meeting, programs are given which consist of original compositions in drama, poetry, essay and sketch, and short story. Some very interesting work has been read before the club.

Although the club was originally composed of students who were either majoring or minoring in English, its membership is by no means restricted to these students. The members of the club are very anxious to have all students who are interested in their work investigate the club. They are willing to consider manuscripts from prospective members at any time. They have social meetings at various times throughout the school year.

Mrs. Tim Larrison's Funeral Is Tomorrow

Mrs. Tim Larrison, about 40 years old, died at childbirth at her home in Hopkins about 8 o'clock last night. She is survived by her husband and two sons. Funeral services will be held at the Baptist Church at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and burial will be made in Bedford Cemetery.

CROPS LOOK BETTER HERE

DISCOURAGING IN OTHER COUNTIES SAYS FLEETWOOD.

CORN THERE IS WEEDY

County Agent, Returning From Vacation, Says Conditions Nowhere Were Superior to Our.

"Crops certainly look discouraging through Central Missouri," J. Ross Fleetwood, county agent, said today on his return from a vacation during which he motored through a large section of central and southern Missouri.

"I don't see how they expect to grow any corn in Central Missouri this year," he declared. "The corn is late and it is weedy. In many fields it is just up.

"Wheat through Central Missouri is good," Mr. Fleetwood said. "The wheat in the Ozarks has heavy straw, but its not filled very well. I found pasture and hay good every place except in some of the lowlands around Centralia. Even the pastures were drowned out there.

"It was interesting to note the difference in the development of the crops on the way home," Mr. Fleetwood explained. He, with Mrs. Fleetwood, drove from Pierce City, 317 miles, yesterday.

"When we first started yesterday morning the threshing was well under way. We saw any number of threshing machines in action. As we drove further north, they grew scarcer; then the men were working on their threshing machines getting them ready. Later the men were using the binder. Still farther north they were only preparing their binders for work.

"The corn in the Ozarks looked good. Around Kansas City there was some pretty good corn, too. It is Johnson, Pettis, Saline, Lafayette counties in that section that have the poorest corn.

Two weeks ago when I left Centralia some farmers were just breaking the ground to plant corn.

"I noticed a big change in the Ozarks. A few years ago they wouldn't raise clover down there. This year I saw a lot of red clover, alfalfa and sweet clover. They have some fine Jersey cows too.

"Taking everything into consideration, with the exception of the places where hail has hit, Nodaway County and with the exception of our bottom lands, this county looked better than any others except the Ozarks and, if you stop to consider that our season is naturally later than their, our crops are just as good and just as far along as theirs."

Mr. and Mrs. Fleetwood visited Mr. Fleetwood's parents at Pierce City and Mrs. Fleetwood's parents at Centralia.

Sheriff Files Answer to Contempt Charges

Admits Some Of Charges Of "Coddling" Prisoners In Cole County Jail.

Kansas City, July 8.—Admitting some of the charges of "coddling" prisoners in the Cole County jail, Sheriff L. P. Withaup today filed an answer to contempt charges brought against him last week by Roscoe Patterson, United States district attorney.

Sheriff Withaup denied some of the charges of granting special privileges to prisoners but admitted that others were true.

He sent a plea of ignorance of the exact letter of the law in extenuation of his act.

Withaup was charged at the same time that the sheriff of Johnson county was served with contempt papers on similar charges.

Famous Newspaper of Atlanta Is Sold

Atlanta, Ga., July 8.—Purchase of the Atlanta Constitution by Col. Luke Lea and Rogers Caldwell, Tennessee publishers, was announced here by Colonel Lea.

Ford to Begin Work on Statute Revision

Leaves For Jefferson City Today To Meet With Revision Commission To Bring Laws Up To Date.

Senator M. E. Ford left today for Jefferson City to meet with the statute revision commission of which he is a member. The law providing for revision and deeding out of the statutes by a commission of six legislators became effective this week. The commission will begin its actual work, starting tomorrow.

It will be the work of the commission to bring the laws up to date for recodifying at the regular revision session o fthe General Assembly in 1929.

The commissioners are planning to divide the work and do the bulk of it in their home cities, having occasional meetings at Jefferson city for matters to be handled by the committee as a whole.

CHESTER LYLE IS CHAIRMAN

RED CROSS ROLL CALL HEAD ANNOUNCED LAST NIGHT.

ASK FOR MORE TOYS

Local Chapter Needs Assistance In Collection of Playthings for Flooded Districts.

Chester Lyle will be Nodaway County's Red Cross roll call chairman for 1927, it was announced at the regular monthly meeting of the executive committee of the Red Cross, held in the City Hall office last night.

The Rev. T. M. Taylor of Elmo, and Andrew J. Bliley of Conception have been added to the executive committee, it was further announced.

A second appeal is being made by Mrs. Fern Crull, executive committee of the local chapter, for toys for children in the flood area. The work of collecting toys will be turned over to some organization, Mrs. Crull said.

The Daily Vacation Bible School here answered the first appeal with dolls, wash cloths, scrap books, needlebooks, jointed animals and clothespin dolls.

The Girl Scouts have volunteered to make the cretonne bags which the Red Cross will use at Christmas.

Fifteen soldier cases were acted on last month, Mrs. Crull reported.

The expenses of the chapter last month were $49.75. This amount covered the following items: notary seal, $5; incidentals, $1.55; carpenter work, $5.20; garage rent, $3; delegates' expenses to life-saving institute at Kansas City, $10; Mrs. Crull's salary, $25.

The total amount which Nodaway County sent for flood relief was $2629.65, it was announced. The county's quota was $1,400.

W. B. Porter Thrown From Load of Hay

W. B. Porter of Pickering was severley injured Tuesday by being thrown backward from a load of hay. He fell on his shoulders and the back of his head and was badly bruised. No bones were broken, however, and he expects to be around again in a few days.

James J. Hill Roads Ask Permit to Merge

Would Involve Railways Into A Network Of 15,900 Miles And Investment Of $1,708,000,000.

Washington, July 8.—The so-called James J. Hill railroad interests today filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission an application for permission to unite the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and the Spokane, Portland and Seattle railroads into a single network 15,900 miles long, under the name of Great Northern-Pacific system.

The transaction submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission for approval, involves $1,708,000,000, this being the total if the investment of the three merged roads and the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, which, though operated separately, is controlled by the northern lines through stock ownership.

Wisconsin Confers Honor on Maitland

Madison, Wis., July 8.—Lieutenant Lester Maitland, army pilot who flew from San Francisco to Hawaii, today was commissioned a colonel in the Wisconsin National Guard and made a member of the governor's staff.

FORD WAR ON JEWRY ENDS

MANUFACTURER MAKES COMPLETE APOLOGY FOR CHARGES.

SAPIRO TO DROP SUIT

Billionaire Had No Knowledge of Articles in Dearborn Independent, He Declares.

Terms to eB Given Soon.

Detroit, July 8.—The terms of the settlement of Aaron Sapiro's $1,000,000 libel suit against Henry Ford will be announced within a week, William H. Gallagher, Sapiro's attorney, said today.

The suit will be settled out of court as a result of Ford's disavowal of the anti-Jewish policies of his magazine, the Dearborn Independent.

Gallagher said his client had sued Ford for vindication instead of money and that Ford's repudiation of attacks on Sapiro practically ended the case.

Ends Bitter Fight.

New York, July 8.—The long and bitter fight between the publications sponsored by Henry Ford on the one hand and the Jewry of the world on the other came to an abrupt and unexpected end today.

A signed statement by Ford, made public here, withdrew all charges against Jews in his publications, expressed regret that they had been published and explained the motor magnate had been unaware of what was being printed in his publications.

The statement came like a treaty of peace. It was followed closely in Detroit by a statement by William H. Gallagher, attorney for Aaron Sapiro, that the latter's $1,000,000 libel suit against Ford probably would be withdrawn.

Louis Marshall, president of the American Jewish committee, who received the original signed copy of Ford's statement, issued a conciliatory statement through the United Press from his summer home at Saranac Lake, New York.

Text of Statement.

New York, July 8.—The text of Henry Ford's statement, repudiating attacks upon Jews in his magazine, the Dearborn Independent, says:

"In the multitude of my activities it has been impossible for me to devote personal attention to their management or to keep informed as to their contents. It therefore inevitably has followed that the conduct and policies of these publications had to be delegated to men whom I placed in charge and upon whom I relied implicitly.

"To my great regret I have learned that Jews generally, and particularly those of this country, not only resent these publications as promoting anti-Semitism, but regard me as their enemy. Trusted friends with whom I have conferred recently have assured me in all sincerity that in their opinion the character of the charges and insinuations made against the Jews, both individually and collectively, contained in many of the articles which have been circulated periodically in the Dearborn Independent and which have been reprinted in the pamphlets mentioned justifies the righteous indignation entertained by Jews everywhere toward me because of the mental anguish occasioned by the unprovoked reflections made upon them."

"This had led me to direct my personal attention to this subject, in order to ascertain the exact nature of the articles. As a result of this survey I confess I am deeply mortified that this Journal, which is intended to be constructive and not destructive, has been made the medium for resurrecting exploded fictions, for giving currency to the so-called protocols of the Wise Men of Zion which have been demonstrated, as I learn, to be gross forgeries, and for contending the Jews have been engaged in a conspiracy to control the capital and the industries of the world, besides laying at their door many offenses against decency, public order and good morals.

Awar of the Race's Virtues.

"Had I appreciated these utterances I would have forbidden their circulation without a moment's hesitation, because I am fully aware of the virtue of the Jewish people as a whole, of what they and their ancestors have done for civilization and for mankind toward the development of commerce and industry, of their sobriety and dil-

Henchman of Villa Held on Arms Charge

Frank N. Thayer Denies Violating U. S. Neutrality Laws.—Denounces Calles And Obregon.

Los Angeles, July 8.—Frank N. Thayer, henchman of Pancho Villa, Mexican politician, was free on $5,000 bond today on charges of conspiracy to smuggle arms and ammunition into Mexico.

Thayer surrendered to officers here declaring that he had not violated United States neutrality laws.

He denounced President Calles of Mexico and Obregon as a "combination of Bolsheviks" in a statement to the press. Thayer charged that Calles had bribed United States employes to stop the flow of arms into Mexico.

Thayer recently toured Mexico and raised $2,500,000 in bonds to "help the Mexican people to eliminate the Calles and Obregon clique of usurpers," he said.

J.R. SHEFFIELD RESIGNS POST

AMBASSADOR TO MEXICO HANDS IN RESIGNATION.

NO REASON ASSIGNED

Press Association Understands President Coolidge Will Accept—Four Successors Mentioned.

Rapid City, S. D., July 8.—James R. Sheffield, ambassador to Mexico, today presented his resignation to President Coolidge.

Sheffield came to Rapid City expressly for the purpose of presenting his resignation and it was given to the President and made public today, following conferences between the chief executive and the ambassador yesterday.

In making announcement of his desire to retire from the important diplomatic post, Sheffield declined to ascribe any definite reason, but said it was not because of ill health, loyalty, lack of support or any of the various reasons which have been previously rumored.

To Be Accepted.

The resignation was taken under consideration by President Coolidge, but the United Press is definitely informed that it will be accepted.

Announcement of its acceptance will be made, it is learned, as soon as Sheffield's successor is named.

Sheffield met newspaper men in conference at the executive offices.

"My plans are very indefinite," he said. "I have handed my resignation to the President to take effect at his convenience. I will do whatever he desires."

4 Successors Mentioned.

Sheffield said that when he called upon Mr. Coolidge last summer he talked over with the President the question of being released.

The ambassador said he was entirely satisfied with the support given him by the administration in the recent Mexican crisis over oil land and that his resignation had nothing to do with his work in Mexico.

Many names of possible successors to the ambassador have been mentioned, including John Garrett, of Baltimore; Silas Strawn, Chicago; former Governor T. E. Campbell of Arizona; and Charles Beecher Warren, former ambassador to Mexico.

Iowa Deputy Sheriff Shot by Bootlegger

One Of Two Men In Car With Missouri License Fatally Wounds Officer Making Arrest.

Leon, Ia., June 7.—Clint McConnell, 50, deputy sheriff, was shot and probably fatally wounded by one of two men suspected of being bootleggers last night when he atempted to stop their motor car and arrest them about eight miles northwest of here. The deputy emptied his pistol at them as they sped away, but apparently none of the shots took effect and they escaped.

McConnell, shot through the abdomen from the side, was taken to a nearby farm house and a physician summoned taere, since he was too weak to be moved far. He cannot live, it was said.

The identity of one of the men is known to authorities, it was said. His name was withheld. The motor car, a Chevrolet coupe, bore Missouri license 188-675. Authorities in all surrounding cities have been asked to be on the lookout for the men.

NAVAL PARLEY PASSES CRISIS

GENEVA DISCUSSIONS TO CONTINUE, IT IS BELIEVED.

THE BLAME ON BRITAIN

Break-Up Of Conference May Mean Start Of Auxiliary Building Program By U. S.

Geneva, July 8.—President Coolidge's naval limitation conference appears to have survived, temporary at least, the major crisis which developed over conflicting cruiser demands from Japan and Great Britain.

The executive committee of the conference, composed of Baron Saito of Japan, W. C. Bridgeman of England, and Hugh S. Gibson of the United States, met today. During a long session the principals of the delegations adopted the report of the technical commission and decided to meet again tomorrow.

The decision was interpreted as indicative of a willingness to continue the discussions here.

A critical moment of the conference was reached yesterday when the Japanese delegation, after days of silence, announced that only the figures of the original American proposal were acceptable to Japan. The announcement was virtually an ultimatum.

U. S. Won't Increase Limit.

Washington, July 8.—Officials here today faced the possibility of failure of the Coolidge naval conference at Geneva.

The administration has definitely decided not to agree under any condition to a total cruiser tonnage of more than 350,000 or 400,000 tons as a maximum for Great Britain and the United States.

Much to the surprise of Washington the British show no signs of receding from their demand for seventy-one cruisers, totaling 500,000 to 600,000 tons.

The present British "modern" cruiser tonnage, including ships building, is 308,000, compared with 95,000 tons for the United States.

The administration is prepared, if Britain forces a break to adopt the following measures.

Will Place The Blame.

1. Put the full blame for the conference failure on the British.

2. Start an auxiliary building program to approximate British strength.

If Britain at Geneva followed the course of the United States at the Washington conference, she would agree to scrap some of her modern cruisers, rather than insist on multiplying them, it is added.

Despite the growing pessimism here, there is still some hope that Japans support of the American plan and the opposition of British tax-payers to the British expansion plan will force the London government to substitute a conciliatory policy for the present allegedly "die hard" admiralty tactics.

Ask Bankruptcy for Case Canning Company

John H. Case Missing From Home in Marshfield for Two Weeks.—Owes $240,000, Is Claim.

Springfield, July 8.—A petition for involuntary bankruptcy was filed here today by creditors against John H. Case, head of the Case Canning Co. of Marshfield. The creditors charge Case owes $340,000.

Case has been missing from his home in Marshfield for more than two weeks. His company is one of the most widely known canning concerns in this part of the state.

BAN JOHNSON RESIGNS AS LEAGUE HEAD

New York, July 8.—Ban Johnson today resigned as president of the American League, effective November 1.

The resignation was announced by Col. Jacob Ruppert, president of the New York club, after an all-day conference of American League magnates here.

Johnson will receive no compensation after November 1, it was said.

The inmates of the state prison over in Kansas have been on a strike while they were telling the prison management what they wantd and what they did not want. This is a new kind of an organization and introduces a very serious problem for the state of Kansas to solve. In Kansas, the prisoners just won't stay unless they are satisfied. In Missouri, the head of the prison board just won't go until he gets good and ready.

Keeping Up the Investment

A farmer was talking to us the other day. He has been successful all his life and one of the reasons he gave for this was the care he took in conserving the fertility of his soil. "I've invested my money in land. I must not let this investment be destroyed by poor farming. When I bought the land it produced so much. If the production fails because of impoverishment then I have let my capital investment go to pieces. The land is only worth what it produces. It is up to me to maintain production." He talked much along the same line as do those when at the head of other industries. We cannot have our cake and eat it. The farmer cannot have his soil fertility if he doesn't see that it is maintained.—Mexico Ledger.

H. L. Felton, Nodaway County Boy in China, Describes Rout of British in Advance of Chinese Nationalists, Backed by Russia

Horace L. Felton, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Felton of Parnell, has written a letter to his parents from Shanghai, China, where he is a member of the staff of the North China Daily News and its weekly edition, the North China Herald.

The letter gives an excellent account of the recent Nationalist disturbances in China and the events leading up to them, together with a graphic picture of the carnage which ensued with the fall of Shanghai.

When the troubles were at their height, Mr. and Mrs. Felton had not heard from their son, and they were much relieved to hear that he was safe.

The letter, taken from the Parnell Review, follows:

"Shanghai, China,
"March 25, 1927.

"Dear folks:

"There has been a lot of chaos in China at times since I have been here, but this time has it over any of them. If I tried to tell you even a little of what there has been and I know you have read the papers and probably have learned a great deal about the situation I would be pounding away on this typewriter at this time tomorrow night.

Like Boxer Uprising.

"From all I have ever written or heard of the Boxer Uprising, this is the nearest thing that has approached it. I will try to relate shortly the foundation of the present trouble and then tell a few instances which I have myself seen.

"As I wrote you some considerable time ago now, the trouble has been brewing for near on to a year, or even longer. In fact, the Nationalist movement is rather an old one in which the students, as they are called—those who are somewhat above the lower strata of society—have tried to awake the slumbering 400,000,000 by trying to instill into them a little national pride.

"At times since the formation of the Republic these have broken out, gotten themselves shot by staging demonstrations against some warlord or against the foreigners—"Imperialists and capitalists" as they call them—in the foreign concessions, and attempted to turn this against their rulers and the foreigners by using it as propaganda.

"One of the most outstanding of these incidents was the Nanking Road massacre of May 30, 1925, in Shanghai, when they tried to raid a police station in the International Settlement, as you remember.

Organized By Russians.

"Following that they were able, through propaganda, to work up the masses of laborers, who, there is no doubt, are much underpaid and who are exploited by the capitalists, until there was a general strike and boycott, as you also remember.

"At about the same time in Canton there sprung up the Nationalist party under the leadership of Dr. Sun Yat-sen. Then the Russian Communists came in, to Canton principally, and gave them what they had been looking for—organization.

"In Shanghai the student unions became stronger and stronger until the Powers—England in particular, with her animosity for Russia—became afraid and, in my opinion, defeated themselves by becoming panicky, while the Russians looked on smilingly and let them cut their own throats while they egged on the students, sent vast sums to China for revolutionary purposes and, in a word, laid the foundation for communism in China.

Not Slow To Learn.

"To Canton the Russians sent advisors who trained the students in the art of propaganda and militarism as she is played in the Western countries. And the Chinese were not so slow to catch on.

"Last fall the stage was all laid for an invasion of the Yangtze Valley, it even being said that the plans had been drawn down to such a fine point that they knew when the Cantonese, under the able generalship of Chiang Kai-shek would reach Wuchang, just across from Hankow. At any rate they arrived there in December and in a few days had succeeded in taking Hankow.

"Eugene Chen, one of the most clever politicians in China was brought up and started negotiations for the return of the British Concession. At first the British refused to talk, but soon learned they were fighting something different than they had ever had to face in China before.

"Instead of the old Chinese method of war in which a general would win a victory by bringing up more men than the opposing general had the Russians had taught them to fight by the infiltration method of sending armed soldiers ahead go straight to the strategic points and shoot.

The British Surprised.

"This took the British in Hankow by surprise. They were absolutely mystified when one fine morning they woke up and found the situation so bad that they knew their defence force and several gunboats out in the Yangtze could not hold back the mobs from without and the armed civilians from within. They were given a few hours to either pack up and go or be left to the mercy of the mobs—and they went fast. Women and children with only the clothes they had on their backs came into Shanghai and now there is practically not a Britisher in Hankow. It was only a matter of hours before the Chinese were in complete control of the Concession and later negotiations have placed it entirely under the Nationalists.

"Then the British concessions at Kiukiang, and all along the river were handed over and the Cantonese had control down to Anking.

"Their next step was to gain control of Chekiang, Kiangsu and Anhwei provinces which were under Sun Chuan-fang, who had practically started himself a kingdom of his own. The tactics were practically the same as in the case of Hankow.

A War Lord Bribed.

"Sun Chuan-fang, in the first place, was not very well liked by the students because he would not allow them to hold their demonstrations and mass meetings and distribute their pamphlets urging the labourers to awake and and throw off the yoke of the imperialists and militarists. There is little doubt that he received quite large sums from the foreigners, principally the British concerns, to hold out against the Nationalists.

"At any rate there was plenty of politics worked throughout the whole affair.

"Gradually the Nationalists made their bed of roses by sending their armed agents into the territory. The first place struck at was Hangchow, which went over to the Nationalists with little trouble. Then Shanghai became the objective.

"By the time the Nationalists got within striking distance the native districts around the city and even the foreign concessions themselves—were so full of Nationalist propaganda (and the civilian army) that they only had to walk in and take over.

The Fall Of Shanghai.

"If you have been following the papers, and I know you must be, you have read the fall of Shanghai. Several thousand of the Northern troops were cornered here since the Nationalists cut the Shanghai-Nanking Railway line and took over the Northern Navy.

"It was a little more than a week ago now that they first arrived.

"For about three days and three nights there was a real pitched battle on in the native districts. The armed civilians planted themselves in houses secretly and fired on the Northern soldiers in the streets. The latter lost all sense of organization and had to stand and be murdered. There were thousands killed.

"The Northerners got tired of being slaughtered after a day or so and tried to rush the barbed wire entanglements, sandbag embankments and trenches which were manned by the British soldiers, American Marines and the entire defense force of the Settlement, numbering 20,000.

Witnessed An Attack.

"I was fortunate—I can say that now since it is all over—in seeing one of the incidents. In a large vacant space just outside of the barriers a bunch of between 1,500 and 2,000 Northerners gathered. They were faced by machine gun fire from the foreigners if they tried to get in and were continually being shot by the Nationalist snipers.

"They were suddenly taken by panic and rushed into the alleyways for which Shanghai is so famous and commenced to break through into the Settlement, pushing the foremost ones over the barbed wire. The small detail of foreigners were unable to hold them. All the Chinese were armed and in their panic started firing.

"Driven to desperation the British soldiers let them have it. The battle lasted for about fifteen minutes, the foreigners not shooting any more shots than were necessary, but letting loose with a volley whenever the Chinese started another rush.

"At the end of the time the street was absolutely covered with dead, dying and wounded Chinese soldiers—and a gruesome sight it was. It was a beautiful day and the sun was just setting over the funny Chinese housetops and to watch them lying, suffering in the streets—streets which were almost as nice as those in a big American city—with the British soldiers standing at bay ready to shoot again while from the back the Nationalists were killing them off by the score, was almost sickening and seemed one of the most inhuman things I can imagine.

He Gets Souvenirs.

"After they had found out that they could not get over the entanglements fast enough they hesitated and then, seemingly relying on the humanity of the white man more than their own, they beggingly threw down their rifles at the feet of the soldiers and began pouring into the street. Machine guns were placed at the intersection of the cross streets on either side and they were coralled and led to a detention camp.

"After the massacre was over I crawled along a wall and got to the debris which had been thrown away and collected me the full equipment of a Chinese soldier, including the well-known headsman's axe with its fancy tassels, blood stains and all, for souvenirs.

"Included among the Northern soldiers was an armored train of White Tussians who were fighting as mercenaries in Sun's army. They swore that they would not surrender and for two days bombarded the city with three inch shells, several of which lit in the main streets of the International Settlement.

To Hospital Himself.

"Shortly after completing what I have written in this letter I was taken to the hospital after having stabbed myself in the hand with a pen knife. The wound at first was not bad, being a clean cut, but infection set in, I believe because I was writing a lot on the typewriter at the time, but the first thing I knew I was landed in the hospital and only caught a case of tetanus in time.

"However, now I am back in perfect condition.

"I have either sent, or had sent, to you several copies of the North China Herald, our weekly edition of the 'North China Daily News' which I hope you have enjoyed. Also hope you received my radio telegram. A friend of mine here is an amateur radio fiend and I can send short messages to you most any time. You will probably get one before you receive this letter. You can answer them by sending your wire back to the amateur on the West coast, who posted mine to you. Would like to hear from you in this way.

My love and very best regards to all.

Your loving son,
H. L. FELTON.

Andrew County Has Small Size Cyclone

Barn With Two Men and Livestock Inside Is Picked Up and Carried Into Corn Field.

While Nodaway County was experiencing hail storms and torrents of rain, Savannah, in Andrew County, witnessed a small cyclone which picked up a barn, in which were two men and some live stock, and carried it into a corn field.

The Savannah Reporter said the men, Harrison Imus and George Fleck, were uninjured, and that the eight horses, four cows and seventy hogs escaped with only a few scratches.

The cyclone occurred on the farm of W. H. Landers, a mile northwest of Savannah, between 7 and 8 p. m. The barn, which is a total loss, was valued at $2,000. It was a 66 by 80-feet structure, 20 feet high.

"The timbers had to be chopped away from the horses and they were slightly scratched," the Reporter said.

Harrison Imus lives on the farm and employed Robert Deaton and Fleck to help him. The three men and Mr. Imus' son were in the barn when they saw the cyclone. Mr. Deaton and the boy ran to the house, but Mr. Imus tried to untie the horses and in an instant the cyclone swept the barn away.

Native Corn Borer at Barnard and Parnell

The native corn borer of Missouri, which has been described as eating into the stalks, has been located in the Barnard and Parnell vicinities.

The Barnard Bulletin said:

"There is some report of the corn borer and Mr. Perry, living on the farm of Claud Roelofson, reports he started to plant over a ten-acre piece of corn Saturday which had been damaged by something and he believed it to be the corn borer."

J. A. Porch of Parnell brought in a sample of his corn which was infested with the corn borer.

Burlington Junction Buildings Hail Riddled as if by Artillery

Yesterday's Burlington Junction Post, describing the severe hail storm in that community, had, in part:

"For several minutes the average size of the hailstones falling was about like a baseball and now and then one would fall that was much larger. One could look into the air and see the chunks of ice for a hundred yards or more in the air, and the larger ones were especially noticeable.

"Wherever one of the larger ones hit a building it left its mark. The skylights in every building in town were broken. A large hailstone hit the skylight in the Post building and crashed through a glass over one-fourth of an inch thick. The skylights in the House drug store, Abel & Jones store and Merchants Cafe were all broken. Lucky it was that there was no wind blowing or there would not have been a plate glass window left in town.

"The hail did a lot of damage to roofs. A large hail stone hit the roof of Frank Wagner's house near the Christian church, went through the roof, plaster and lath and landed on the floor. At several other places the stones went entirely through the roofs.

"There are over 100 holes in the roofing on the Ferguson-Staples lumber sheds, and some of the hailstones knocked holes half way through the sheeting. R. H. Rees of the Rees Lumber Co., said that it would taken $500 to repair the damage done to the roofs of his lumber sheds. At several places on his roofs the hail stones went entirely through the roof. Many other roofs are damaged. A large hail stone crashed through the roof of the implement building at the Big 4 Hardware.

"Livestock is said to have suffered much during the storm, and it seems a miracle that more damage was not done.

"Strange as it may seem, growing crops do not seem to have been badly damaged. The hail was scattered enough not to have caused any big loss in that way."

This and That

Mayor W. O. Garrett and W. C. Pierce of this city and John D. Rockefeller of New York are celebrating birthdays today. Mayor Garrett says he is 59 years old. Mr. Pierce is 64 years old and located in Maryville with the building of the Wabash here forty-eight years ago yesterday. Mr. Rockefeller is 88 years old.

The ministers' Club held its irregular meeting in the Democrat-Forum office this morning and the Rev. W. S. Woodhull found he had keen rivalry in joke telling from the Rev. W. N. Dewar.

Mr. Woodhull started to tell the one about the "dirty window pane," but he knew we couldn't see through it. Isn't that just terrible? Only by a small vote was he allowed to remain in the club after that one.

Mr. Dewar told this one about golf. You know Mr. Dewar and golf:

Sandy and the clergyman had played eighteen holes of golf and Sandy had won them all. In an attempt to console the minister, Sandy said, "Oh, well dominie, some day you'll get consolation by conducting funeral rites over my grave."

"Ah, but no," said the minister, "that will be your hole, too."

JUDGE SAMUEL RETIRES

Comment on the Uniform International Sunday School Lesson for July 10, 1927.
Read 1 Samuel 12.

Wm. Southern, Jr.

How many of us would dare challenge the world to point out in our lives any dishonorable thing?

Just how honest are we anyway? Are we honest, or dishonest, or law-honest?

When I come to retire from active life I would like to be able to do as Judge Samuel did, stand out before the people and challenge them one and all to point out a single action in my life which had been in the least dishonest, or even slightly shady, and have no fear that the challenge would be accepted to my confusion. I am afraid that there are not many of us who could do this without secret fear. There are men brave enough to issue the challenge and stand out and admit the dark spots. Next to being able to do as did Samuel I would like to be able to do this.

I think I have said before that there are men born Christians, men prayed into the world, men who never sowed any wild oats and I still believe this is true. The story of Samuel is the best illustration that I know of that such a thing is possible and has always been possible.

You will enjoy re-reading the book of 1st Samuel, starting at the first chapter. It is as interesting a document of human interest as any novel and much more interesting than some best sellers of today, which would not be best sellers at all if we had good taste and if our sordid minds did not at the bottom hide pornographic thoughts.

Samuel's father was Elkhanah, a man of high breeding, and noble character. His mother was Hannah, a fit mate for Elkhapah. Hannah prayed Samuel into the world, promised God her boy should be devoted to his service, kept her promise and gave Samuel at a very early age to the service of God in the temple and went back happy to her home which was again childless.

When he was an old man, when he had annointed Saul as King of Israel and when the people had confirmed his action and inaugurated Saul king, Samuel called a great meeting and made his farewell address. He challenged the world to point out a single dishonest act in his long life as a judge and administrator.

In these days we are very prone to sneer at honesty, to impugn the motives of our public officials, to deny the uprightness of our judges. We act like a corrupt judge is something new and modern. In the days of Samuel the corrupt judge was the usual and the honest judge was the exception. In these days the corrupt judge, the grafting official, the dishonest man handling other people's money is the exception. He is almost always found out and disgraced. If he has been law-honest and the punishment of sentence can not touch him, the people all know his character and he is condemned in the minds of men.

In Samuel's day it was the fashion to make presents to the judge and the judge often accepted presents. In these days a judge who was known to have accepted a present from a litigant in his court would be forever disgraced.

I have very little patience with the reformers who are forever apologizing for our government, for the men who sneer at public officials and who doubt the honest of men in high places. I wish that once in a while some of these pure souls would say something good about Uncle Sam.

I suppose that every man at some time in his busy life promises himself that he will retire when he gets old. Most men mean they will quit work. It seems to be an almost general ambition to get to that state of wealth where we do not have to work. I have seen men try this and usually they die very soon. The habits of a lifetime are broken. The body lets down and when they have no more work to do they simply die.

It is a curious thought I have heard expressed that men always live to finish the work God placed them here to do and that men do not die until that work is finished. I once heard a man pray that when he had finished his work he be paid his wages and be dismissed. It was a good prayer at that. We are all more or less fatalists, but some of us will not admit it.

How different was Samuel's challege from that one issued by Sinclair Lewis in a Kansas City pulpit when he laid his watch on the table and gave the Lord just three minutes to strike him dead. It was an impious thing to do. I would like to dare Sinclair Lewis to stand before that same audience today and challenge as did Samuel the Judge, any man to say aught in his life which has been unrighteous and did those in that audience tell what they now know of his life he would slink from the place in shame. He assumed to place God on trial when he himself was before the bar.

Samuel retired from the active administration of the affairs of the nation, he retired as judge. A king had been ordained and his administration was well established. Saul had won his spurs in battle and in leadership and Samuel retired to the temple to do the work he loved best, to study the word of God, to commune with God and to pray for his king and his people. He was by no means through. He appears again in the pages of history as a king maker, as the strongest man in the kingdom, as the man honored by the confidence of all, the man who stood before them all and challenged them to point out a single crooked act in his life, private or public. Was Samuel's life a success? We do not read anywhere that he gained great riches. We do not read anywhere that he had diamonds and gold and slaves and sat on thrones. But at this way, several thousands of years record tells, the name of Samuel is known and honored by every school child in the land.

In his farewell address Samuel explained it all. He recalled the history of the people, their miraculous history. He pointed out the times when they had disobeyed God and what happened. He called attention to the fact that no matter how wicked they had been, nor how disobedient, nor into what evil times they had fallen, God had always forgiven them and given them another chance.

I like to believe this doctrine. Some will say it is old fashioned. While I try to be modern and to keep up with modern styles and thoughts and manners of living I am quite sure that there are some old fashioned things which can never be out of date. I am one that believes that God really cares, that he directs the wills and the actions of men and that he knows all about our troubles, our wars, our quarrels, our unhappiness.

I would like to so live that I could challenge the world as did Samuel: "Witness against me before Jehovah," and no man should have a word to say.

SAMUEL'S FAREWELL

1 Sam. 12: 1-5, 19-25.

1 Sam. 12: 1. And Samuel said unto all Israel, Behold, I have hearkened unto your voice in all that ye said unto me, and have made a king over you.

2. And now, behold, the king walketh before you: and I am old and gray-headed; and, behold, my sons are with you: and I have walked before you from my youth unto this day.

3. Here I am: witness against me before Jehovah, and before his anointed: whose ox have I taken? or whose ass have I taken? or whom have I defrauded? whom have I oppressed? or of whose hand have I taken a ransom to blind mine eyes therewith? and I will restore it you.

4. And they said, Thou hast not defrauded us, nor opressed us, neither hast thou taken aught of any man's hand.

5. And he said unto them, Jehovah is witness against you, and his anointed is witness this day, that ye have not found aught in my hand. And they said, He is witness.

19. And all the people said unto Samuel, Pray for thy servants unto Jehovah thy God, that we die not; for we have added unto all our sins this evil, to ask us a king.

20. And Samuel said unto the people, Fear not: ye have indeed done all this evil; yet turn not aside from following Jehovah, but serve Jehovah with all your heart;

21. and turn ye not aside; for then would ye go after vain things which cannot profit nor deliver, for they are vain.

22. For Jehovah will not forsake his people for his great name's sake, because it hath pleased Jehovah to make you a people unto himself.

23. Moreover as for me, far be it from me that I should sin against Jehovah in ceasing to pray for you; but I will instruct you in the good and the right way.

24. Only fear Jehovah, and serve him in truth with all your heart; for consider how great things he hath done for you.

25. But if ye shall still do wickedly, ye shall be consumed, both ye and your king.

Third of Illustrated Sermons to Be Given

The Rev. W. N. Dewar Preaching on "Life of Jesus."—"The All-Sufficient Christ" Morning Topic.

"The All-Sufficient Christ" will be the subject of the Sunday morning sermon of the Rev. William N. Dewar at the First Presbyterian Church.

At the evening service, the Reverend Mr. Dewar will preach on the topic, "On the Hillside With the Common People," the third of a series of six illustrated sermons on the "Life of Jesus." The slides are reproductions of the works of great artists, such as Hunt, Copping and Angelo and others.

"The lectures," says the minister, "provide a splendid opportunity to visualize the scenes and events in our Lord's life on earth. Bring the family and spend the evening pleasantly and profitably. Your are cordially invited."

Special music will be provided by the choir at both services. In the morning Miss Halcyon Hooker will sing a solo, "Open the Gates," by Knapp, and there will be an anthem, "Thou Art My All," by Wooler. The special numbers in the evening will be an anthem, "The Sun of Righteousness," by Geibel, and a solo by Miss Christine Goff, "Eye Hath Not Seen" from "The Holy City," by Gaul.

The choir wil meet for practice at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night.

Sunday school begins at 9:30 a. m., the morning worship at 10:45, and the evening worship at 8. All services are open to the public, with a special invitation to strangers.

BARRETT NEW COUNCIL HEAD

100 ENROLLED AT SKIDMORE SUNDAY SCHOOL MEET.

CLOSES LAST NIGHT

Several Maryville Persons Elected to Offices; Forrest Gillam Is Vice-President.

Frank H. Barrett, Skidmore, is the new president of the Nodaway County Council of Religious Education. He was elected at the meeting held at Skidmore yesterday. The council was in session Wednesday and Thursday and about 100 persons were enrolled.

Forrest Gillam was elected vice-president and Mrs. I. E. Tulloch is the secretary treasurer, Miss Bertha Anderson; superintendent of children's division, Mrs. Ellis Cook; superintendent of young people's division, Mrs. Leonard Bosch; superintendent of adults' division, T. H. Leet; superintendent of administration division, Dr. E. A. Miller, Hopkins.

A finance committee was created with the Rev. J. V. Hawk as head with power to appoint his own associates.

The resolution committee reported the following:

"We, the committee on resolutions, wish to present the following recommendations:

"First: That we seek to gain the cooperation of a larger number of schools and that we endeavor to serve their needs in a larger way.

"Second: That we urge our schools to strive harder to reach their constituency through the Sunday School.

"Third: That we bring our district officers to a realization of their obligation in serving their community through institutes and personal visitation of schools.

"Fourth: That during the coming year the interest in the work may be stimulated and that it may be carried on in a greater and broader way than ever before.

"Fifth: We wish to extend a vote of thanks to Miss Eva Davis and all others that have contributed to the work of the Nodaway County Council of Religious Education during the past year.

"Sixth: We wish to express our appreciation for the inspiration and ideals given to us by Miss Harriet Walker and Dr. S. F. Riepma in their wonderful addresses in this convention.

"Seventh: We wish to thank the people of Skidmore for the fine Christian hospitality that they have extended to us in opening their homes and the two fine dinners that they have given us.

"Building for Lord" Is Prather's Subject

Christine Goff Will Sing at Morning Service at First Baptist Church.

"Building for the Lord," is the subject which the Rev. Guy L. Prather will discuss at the Baptist Church Sunday morning. Sunday school will be held at 9:30 o'clock and morning worship at 11 o'clock. The choir will give special music and Miss Christine Goff will sing.

Modern Woodmen to Attend Barnard Picnic

St. Joseph Camp, With Nearly 1,000 Members, To Send Large Delegation.—To Have Log Rolling.

Drills, log rolling contests and speaking by the Modern Woodmen are on the program for the first day of the thirty-third annual Barnard Picnic, which opens August 1, the Barnard Bulletin stated this week.

Paul Stalling, C. L. Phillips and L. W. Mendenhall, of the picnic committee, are making arrangements to handle the largest crowd in the history of Barnard's biggest event of the year.

Members of the Modern Woodmen from Northwest Missouri are planning to attend. The Bulletin said:

"One camp of Woodmen of St. Joseph, which boasts of a membership of nearly a thousand, will come in a body, bringing a drill team that ranks with the best in the United States.

"With them will be the Royal Neighbors and entertainers. This is the largest camp in this jurisdiction and will possibly furnish the largest delegation."

The Barnard band will furnish music for the three days' picnic.

TWO DRASTIC LAWS CLASH

AS A RESULT NEW MISSOURI STATUTES MAY NOT STAND.

PUT "TEETH" IN LAW

Two Conflicts Apparently Leave Loophole for Convicts Sentenced Under Their Provisions.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat today says two of the most drastic laws enacted by the last legislature, to put teeth in the Missouri criminal code, are in conflict and consequently unconstitutional, in the opinion of state officials in Jefferson City and Howard Sidener, circuit attorney.

One of the laws was sponsored by Senator William Maffit Bates of St. Louis and provided for life imprisonment for all offenders on the fourth conviction for a felony and a minimum sentence of seven years for robbery with a deadly weapon. The other was sponsored by Representative Carl J. Henry of Bates County, and raised the maximum sentence for robbery with a deadly weapon to the death sentence and fixed the minimum sentence at ten years.

Both were signed by Governor Baker and are on the statute books.

The old laws, which they replace, fix the punishment for robbery in the first degree at a penitentiary sentence of from five years to life imprisonment, and did not include any provisions for life imprisonment for habitual criminals, the article will say. This feature of the Bates bill would give Missouri a law similar in effect to the Baumes law of New York which has attracted wide attention over the country.

At the time the two new bills were approved by Governor Baker April 8 he expressed the opinion they were not in conflict to such an extent the defect ould not be remedied by adjustments by the courts of the state.

"Examination of the two new statutes since that time by lawyers has disclosed two defects, which apparently leave a wide loophole of escape for a convict convicted under the provisions," the newspaper will say.

"The Bates bill, the official at Jefferson City has pointed out, does not define a felony, but does provide for a minimum sentence of life imprisonment for robbery with a deadly weapon. Hence, if a defendant is sentenced to death under the Henry law his lawyer could base an appeal on the ground the maximum provided by the Bates bill is life imprisonment and the two laws are in conflict.

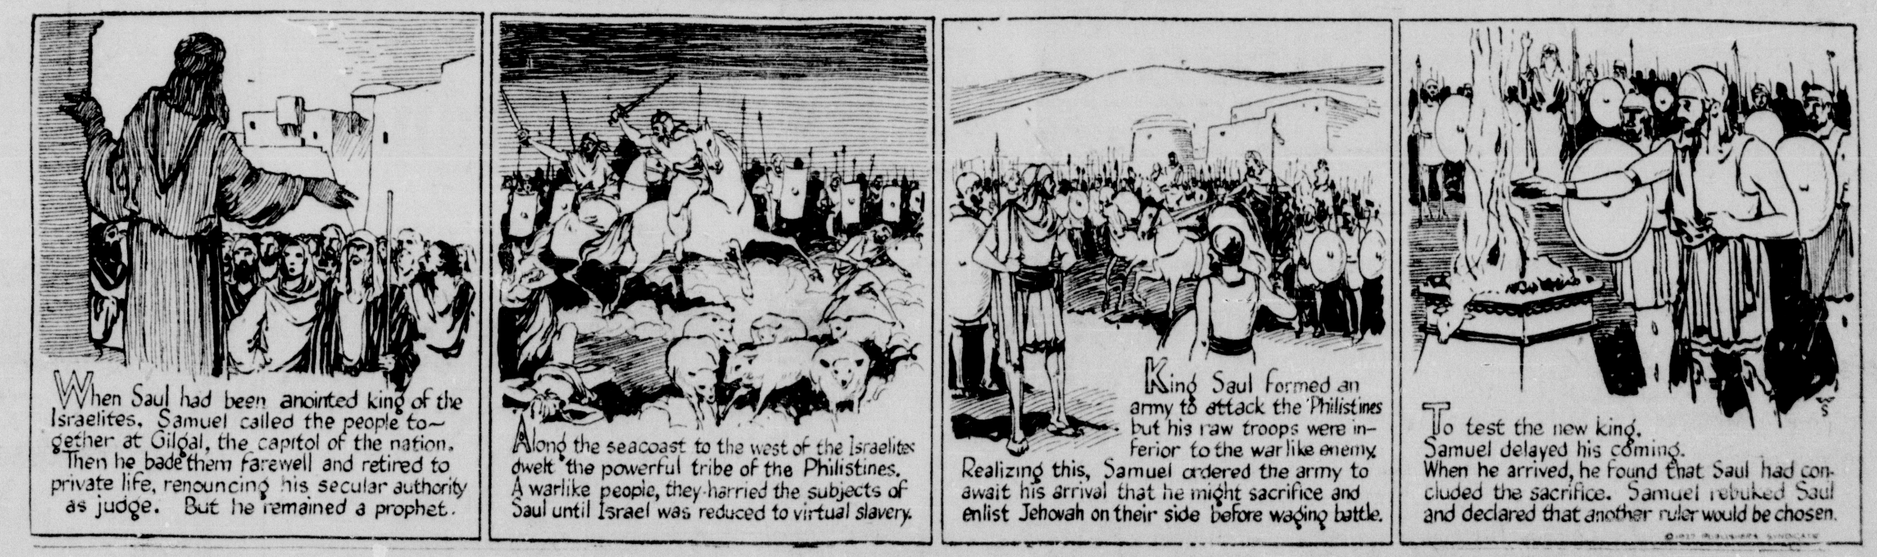
"Mr. Schneider has pointed out also that on the other hand the minimum sentences do not agree; and again a defendant convicted and sentenced to ten years under the Henry bill could base an appeal on the minimum sentence fixed by the Bates statute at seven years."

Sympathy Should Branch Out.

Human sympathy is a great motive power. No cool, calculating attitude will take the place of it. One can name very few of the great advances which were not due to human sympathy. The trouble is we have been using this great motive force for too small ends. If human sympathy prompts us to feed the hungry, why should it not give a much greater prompting toward making hunger impossible.—Dearborn Independent.

DRAMATIC EVENTS IN BIBLE HISTORY : : By Harlowe R. Hoyt and Walter Scott

Samuel's Farewell and Saul's Failure



When Saul had been anointed king of the Israelites, Samuel called the people together at Gilgal, the capitol of the nation. Then he bade them farewell and retired to private life, renouncing his secular authority as judge. But he remained a prophet.
Along the seacoast to the west of the Israelites dwelt the powerful tribe of the Philistines. A warlike people, they harried the subjects of Saul until Israel was reduced to virtual slavery.
King Saul formed an army to attack the Philistines but his raw troops were inferior to the warlike enemy. Realizing this, Samuel ordered the army to await his arrival that he might sacrifice and enlist Jehovah on their side before waging battle.
To test the new king, Samuel delayed his coming. When he arrived, he found that Saul had concluded the sacrifice. Samuel rebuked Saul and declared that another ruler would be chosen.

Jungle Breath

THIS HAS HAPPENED

LINCOLN NUNNALLY, elderly American chemist, mysteriously summoned to the queer little jungle-bordered town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, encounters an old friend, VILAK, who tells him it was he who had sent for him.

Vilak's cousin, ELISE MARBERRY, an American girl, owns a coffee plantation and other land near Porto Verde and has received mysterious warnings to get out of the country. Vilak is alarmed, because several deaths already have occurred and the superstitious natives think some supernatural force is at work.

The day Nunnally arrives another man is killed, TONY BARBETTA, one of Elise Marberry's foreman. He had been hit with a club in the hands of LIMEY POTTS, another foreman. Before he died a strange paralysis took hold of him, and Vilak confides to Nunnally that he is certain Limey Potts, though he may have struck the victim, was not the murderer.

That evening Vilak induces Nunnally to come with him on a visit to the house of GAYLORD PRENTISS, a reticent and forbidding man, known to be an enemy of Elise.

Before going to Prentiss' place, Vilak and Nunnally call on Elise Marberry. Vilak refuses to let her go with them, and he and Nunnally continue. At Prentiss' gate, which is fortified with barbed wire, they hear a rustling in the bushes nearby.

Returning to Elise's plantation, they run across two notorious characters of Porto Verde in the midst of a violent quarrel. Both men snatch off their hats and bow politely as Vilak's party approaches.

The next day Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnaped. They suspect Prentiss. Vilak leads the pursuit and the follow a circuitous trail of horse tracks and finally come upon the child near a railroad camp.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

is nothing that I do. It is nothing."

"Where did you find him?" Vilak queried.

"Over there in the bushes." He pointed off to the patch of vegetation from which they had just come. "It is very strange. Most strange. We were working here, my men and I, spreading gravel along the track where the water has washed the earth away—we cannot do much, but we do what we can—when we hear the noise of horses galloping up the road from which you have come. This is nothing. Often we hear the horses gallop. Many ride past this place. Is it not so?

"The horses stop for a moment, then gallop on again. And then we hear other horses gallop. But this also is nothing. But soon also we hear something which we who work in the wild places hear never in our wanderings, the weping of a child. An Indian baby, I think, deserted by its mother. I go to the bushes to see. And there in the weeds I find it, a white baby, I am astonished. A beautiful baby, senhorita, a beautiful baby."

He took one of Vilak's cigarets. "I know at once when I look that it has not been deserted. It is lost or perhaps it is stolen. I am a stranger here. Also are my men strangers. I ask of one who passes on the road if he has ever before beheld the baby, if he perhaps knows the mother. 'Ah yes!' says he at once. 'Who in Porto Verde does not know? It is the nephew of the Senhorita Marberry.'

"At once I send a man to ride swift to your fazenda, for I know

He bowed. "You honor me, senhorita. You do to me great honor."

CHAPTER 15

Vilak stood silently looking on, half amused, half thoughtful. Elise turned to him, still holding the baby. "You're a dear," she murmured. "I thought it before, but I didn't know it before today. I take back everything that I said about you. I was a pig. And when I cried and completely lost control of myself you said nothing, made none of the caustic, sarcastic remarks that you might have made, but instead set about finding Tinky. . . And found him. It's a long time since I broke down the way I did this afternoon. But Tinky has become a part of me somehow." She leaned over and kissed Vilak impulsively.

"Here, here," he said sheepishly, taking out his cigaret case. "You certainly are upset. Have one of my strong cigarets and quiet you nerves." He lit one. "I'd certainly like to know how Tinky got here. I have a theory, but our friend the civil engineer, who is coming up now, looks as if he might tell us a few facts." He turned to greet the newcomer, who came forward, his dark, pointed face aglow with pleasure.

"Good day, senhorita, amigos," he murmured, shaking hands cordially with the two men and bowing to the girl. "I see you the baby have once more in your arms. I am happy. Most happy."

"It is the Senhorita who is happy," Vilak responded. "And she owes her happiness to you."

The other gave a disparaging shrug of his small, well-knit shoulders. "It

how great must be your agony. He returns. You are gone, he says, where your servants know not. But I know. you have gone to look for the child. It is not good for him to stay there in the damp bushes where there are mosquitoes which bite and snakes which kill. So I bring him here where I can watch. I fetch for him a blanket so that he will not be on the cold, wet ground—I have also nephews, senhorita. Still he is not happy. He cries always. English words, which I cannot well understand. So I bring for him an orange. He eats. He is happy. At last I see you come. And he is very happy."

Vilak lit the other's cigaret, then his own. "Mighty decent. Very few men would have been so thoughtful. I want to assure you that Senhorita Marberry and I are deeply grateful." He smoked thoughtfully. "You didn't have a chance to see the men who were on the horses?"

"No, senhor. It is too low here. We cannot see the road." He looked at his cigaret interestedly. "Very excellent, these cigarets. Your special brand, no doubt."

"Exactly. Orinetal. I'm glad to hear you say you like them. Senhorita Marberry doesn't approve." He glanced toward her smilingly. "Incidentally I haven't introduced you. My client, Senhorita Marberry, I present for all your good wishes Senhor—" He pauses for the name.

"D'Albentara. Carlos D'Albentara," the other responded graciously.

Elise stepped forward and heartily shook his hand. "I shall never forget what you've done for me. If there's anything that I can do or anything that my fazenda has which might help you I'll feel very much hurt if you don't ask for it. I hope you'll come out and call on me."

He bowed. "You honor me, senhorita. You do to me great honor."

She glanced at the men shoveling gravel at the river's edge. "Do you think there is going to be a flood? The river seems to be getting higher all the time and I'm beginning to be worried about my property over at Villapa, about fifteen or twenty miles from here. It's always the first to get the water. I've got a good man over there, a chap named Wilson, who is very good, but he's been quite ill lately with fever and I hate to have him be compelled to do all the fearful work of an emergency such as a flood."

D'Albentara looked surprised. "Wilson, you say this is his name? Could it be perhaps that I know him? A little man, black hair, and large feet, who has once worked on this railroad as an engineer?"

"No. It' a different man altogether. The one that works for me is a blond and I brought him direct from the States. . . . Do you think we'll have the flood?"

"That I wish I knew, senhorita. No one can say and perhaps afterward not be called a teller of falsehoods. But to me the river seems rising, always. And if it rises there cannot but be a flood."

The stunted Indian of the enormous nose who had brought them from the road came forward and, grunting a few guttural sentences to him, pointed off to a group of laborers sawing some trees. He turned to the visitors. "I must go back to my men, amigos," he murmured. "It is to me a great pleasure to have made your friendship. A great pleasure. Goodby, senhorita, senhor."

"Don't forget to come to see me. Soon." Elise called out blithely as they climbed to the road again.

She jumped into her saddle, then took the baby which Vilak gently lifted to her. "Life's a queer thing," she said as the horses paced slowly toward the fazenda, and she leaned down and kissed the child again. "At two o'clock I am heartbroken, at five I am simply bubbling over with joy. Simply because this little bit of humanity we happen to call Tinky is with me. Oh, I know I make a fool of myself over him," she added with a half apologetic glance at Vilak. "But I do love him. Whatever my sardonic cousin pretends to think about the folly of human emotions in general, and the emotion of affection in particular. Some people can go through life with a poker face and a poker face disposition. I can't.

Vilak untied a knot in his horse's bridle. "A poker face in my profession is at times a necessity. I thoroughly approve of love . . . applied to . . . Tinky." He watched her thoughtfully as her delicate hand carressed the child. "I'm sorry. I've bad news for you."

(To Be Continued)

Vilak gets himself a ring—in a very curious fashion, for it is a very curious ring.

OUT OUR WAY. By Williams

NORTHEAST NODAWAY.

A majority of the people in this neighborhood spent the Fourth of July in Grant City, while others had family picnics and dinners.

Virgil Stoner and wife spent Wednesday at Ralph Winemiller's.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Finn of Kansas City spent the Fourth with Mrs. Finn's sister, Mrs. Volley Dukes. They returned home Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Haywworth, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Lyle, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hayworth, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Dowis and daughters, Cleoiu, Eula, Leta, and Elma, and Mrs. J. E. Majors and son, Jimmie, attended the birthday party of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hayworth Sunday.

Ralph Allison has purchased a new Ford Truck.

J. E. Majors drove up from Kansas City Monday after Mrs. Majors and son, Jimmie. They returned home Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Majors and son had been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Dowis and other relatives for the last two weeks.

Protection of Bird Life Urged by U. S.

Farmer's Winged Friends Help to Overcome Insect Pests, Says Agriculture Department.

Washington, July 8.—Protect birds for without them the country would be overrun with insects pests, the Agriculture Department advises both rural and city dwellers.

"Birds may be looked upon as an ever present force that automatically tends to check outbreaks of insect pests, a force that should be kept at a maximum efficiency by protective measures so that their services may be utilized whenever possible," the Department said.

Sparrows are noted for feeding on ants ,caggage bugs, army worms, cicadas, green bugs, alfalfa weevils, and caterpillars while Meadow larks eat grasshoppers and crickets.

White breasted muthatches reduce greatly the number of pear psylla and the codling moth. Goldfinches like plant lice, and woodpeckers are among the most effective enemies of bark beetles, wood borers, the European corn borer, leopard and codling moths and many other woodland pests.

Crows, blackbirds and grackles are fond of white grubs and will follow a plow to get them in the spring.

Forty-five species of birds have been found to feed extensively on the alfalfa weevil while 66 attack the cotton boll weevil.

Mallard ducks have been effectively used in ponds for mosquito control, while blackbirds help keep down boll worms and other pests.

Now—A New Race of Motor Cars!

Thanks to RED CROWN ETHYL GASOLINE

CHRYSLER has just announced a new high compression engine. Undoubtedly other manufacturers will do the same thing. That means a new race of motor cars—swifter—more flexible—more powerful!

Now that Red Crown Ethyl is on the market, high compression engines can be built and operated. Red Crown-Ethyl Gasoline is a high compression fuel.

For years engineers have wanted to build high compression engines. They could not because there was no fuel to feed them. The usual type of gasoline knocks and loses power when compressed beyond certain limits.

Red Crown Ethyl "Knocks Out That Knock".

You'll hardly recognize your old car if you feed it Red Crown Ethyl! Power when you need it—speed when you want it—get-up and go every mile! An engine lively and eager and quick!

Red Crown Ethyl "knocks out that knock"—uses carbon. Carbon deposits raise the compression of your engine. That's why—with old type gasoline—carbon causes knocks. With Red Crown Ethyl it's different. Red Crown Ethyl is a high compression fuel. The more carbon—the higher the compression—the better Red Crown Ethyl works.

This remarkable gasoline gives you the benefits of high compression. That's the scientific reason back of its remarkable performance. That's why hundreds of thousands of motorists in the Middle West will use no other gasoline!

RULES

All want ads must be in by 12:30 o'clock on day of insertion.

Count the words of your ad, including the one or two words necessary for the indexing of your ad, and count each initial and each number or combination of figures as one word.

Misclassification is not permitted.

All advertisements are subject to the publishers approval.

Always ask that your telephone ad be read back to you by the want ad taker to make sure that it has been taken correctly.

Want ad users should read their advertisements when they first appear and report any errors at once, as no allowance will be made for errors or misclassifications after the first day.

All orders from outside of Maryville must be accompanied by cash.

(O. G. NULL).

Miss Mildred Burks left Monday for New York City, where she will attend Columbia University this summer in further preparation for her work as instructor in home economics in the schools at Excelsior Springs, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Omer Wray and family returned Monday from a motor trip to Colorado. They visited at Denver, Greeley, Longmont and several other places of interest while gone and had a very pleasant trip. They report crops in Nebraska as being quite good, as they have had plenty of rain and a favorable season for planting and cultivation of their crops. Mr. Wray has resumed his work as manager of the Wray Hardware Co. at this place.

S. E. Yager and son, Alva, left Thursday for their home in Rochester, Minn., after a ten day visit with friends and relatives here.

A number of families from Bloomdale and Long Branch neighborhoods attended the celebration at Grant City on the Fourth of July.

Mrs. Carrie Wray of Bloomdale neighborhood entertained at dinner last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Campbell of Maryville and Miss Elizabeth Arthur of Burlington Junction. Miss Arthur is visiting at the Wray home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. McMillen and Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Null attended the reunion of former residents of the Douglas district at College Park in Maryville last Monday. Mr. McMillen at one time lived in that district and also taught there.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Florea had as guests over the week end Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Florea and son, Billy of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. Raymond Florea of Chicago and Wm. Ball of Denver, Colo. On Sunday they had a picnic dinner at College Park in Maryville in honor of their visitors. In addition to the above mentioned guests, those who attended the picnic were Mr. and Mrs. Sam Florea and family of near Gaynor; Mr. and Mrs. Denver Florea and family of Hopkins; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Florea, Maryville; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Florea, near Gaynor; Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Florea of Union school vicinity; Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Hinton and daughter, Mrs. Meda J. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Stone and daughter of Pickering vicinity.

Ed McKee came up from Clinton, Mo., where he had been installing a lighting and heating plant, and spent the week end with his family here. He will go this week to Maysville to install a couple of plants and later go back to Clinton, where a number of plants are to be installed.

Loren Hackett and Edgar Houston shipped two loads of baby beeves of their own feeding to St. Joseph on Tuesday and received very satisfactory prices for them.

John Harrington shipped a load of cattle and hogs of his own feeding to St. Joseph on Wednesday and Richard Collins shipped a load of cattle on Thursday of this week.

A splendid shower fell in this vicinity on Tuesday evening and another Wednesday evening. Quite a little hail fell during the shower on Wednesday but as there was very little wind it did very little damage, though many of the hailstones were as large as hickory nuts. The rain was greatly appreciated and will be of great value to growing crops.

Mrs. A. W. Groth and children and Miss Helen Carlson, who have been visiting at the home of Mrs. Groth's mother, Mrs. Amelia Sapp of the Mozingo Valley neighborhood, returned to their home in West Union, Ia., Thursday afternoon. They visited here about two weeks.

"Of course there are black sheep in every flock, as there are among men of all races, creeds and nationalities who are at times evil-doers. It is wrong, however, to judge a people by a few individuals, and I therefore join in condemning unreservedly all wholesale denunciations and attacks.

"Those who know me can bear witness it is not my nature to inflict insult upon, and to occasion pain to, anybody, and that it has been by effort to free myself from prejudice. Because of that I frankly confess I have been greatly shocked as a result of my study and examination of the files of the Dearborn Independent and of the pamphlets entitled 'The International Jew.'

"I deem it my duty as an honorable man to make amends for the wrong done the Jews as fellowmen and brothers by asking their forgiveness for the harm I have unintentionally committed, by retracing so far as lies within my power the offensive charges laid at their door by these publications and by giving them the unqualified assurance that henceforth they may look to me for friendship and good will."

CITY FUNDS IN USUAL SLUMP

SUMMER DECREASE, HOWEVER, IS LESS THAN LAST YEAR.

JULY BALANCE $56,794

Receipts for Quarter About Same as a Year Ago, but Expenses Are Less.

A decrease in the city treasury from $60,758.41 on April 2 to $56,794.91 on July 2, due to a slump in collections, was reported today by W. O. Garrett, mayor, in his quarterly financial report. A decrease is always shown during the summer and early fall months, it was pointed out.

This slump of $3,963.50 in the city's balance the last three months, is hardly half of what the decrease was for the same period last year, the July report of 1926 showing $59,188.23 on hand compared to a $66,076.62 balance April 2 of 1926, or a drop of $6,888.39.

The receipts during the last three months compare favorably with the same period a year ago, the report issued today giving the receipts as $10,786.53 as against $10,924.94 for the same time last year. Expenditures were less from April to July this year than a year ago. Mr. Garrett reported disbursements as $14,750.03 for the three-months period this year and $17,813.33 last year.

The balance in the water fund July 2 was $33,214.23. Ten thousand dollars of this is out on time deposit and $7,000 on a loan. The water receipts from April 2 to July 2 were $7,131.66, while the disbursements in this fund were $5,459.78. Railroads contributed $315 to the water fund, private rates $60.28, private meters, $6,582.82 and special receipts $173.56. Office salaries were $450, wages $1,530.20, coal, $46.68, electric current, $1,602.70 and fire pumps $75. General supplies in the water fund cost $475.79, general expense was $49.70, repairs $1,220.21 and refunds $9.50.

The street fund showed a balance of $3,108.17 July 2 as compared to $3,152.51, April 2. The receipts were $1,363 and disbursements $1,407.34, which included $1,174.35 for payroll, $1460.54 for supplies, $70.45 renewals and $2 expense.

A decrease was shown in the library fund from $2,595.61 April 2 to $2,041.81 July 2. Receipts were $206.66 and expenses $760.46, of which $440 went for salaries, $205.49 for books, magazines and bindings and rest for supplies, lights, coal and insurance.

The balance in the general fund fell from $17,944.36 at the beginning of the quarter to $14,750.43 July 2. Receipts were $1,366.73 and disbursements $4,560.66. The largest disbursement was for wages, $1,776. Office salaries were $750, suplies $508, fire department $105.50, repairs $394.98 and $500 for a tractor.

There was a balance of $244.39 in the first water bond principal and interest fund, $351 in the street workers guarantee fund and $1,527.06 in the second water bond principal and interest fund July 2. It cost the city $1,701.29 to light the streets during the three-months' period, the balance in the street lighting fund being $1,557.82 July 2 and $3,035.99 April 2, with receipts of only $233.12.

CLOSING GRAIN REVIEW.

Chicago, July 8.—A sharp decline was made in all grain prices on the Chicago Board of Trade today under the influence of good buying and short covering. Opening prices on wheat were nervous, registering 3-8 cent lower to ¼ cent higher. The rust reports and continued poor threshing reports from the Southwest entered the market shortly afterward and the price climbed steadily. The cash market jumped ½ to 1 cent.

Local corn bulls were aggressive from the opening, which was unchanged to 1 1-8 cents higher. The cash market was ½c higher.

Activity in oats was apparent for the first time in recent sessions. The cash market was up ½ cent.

Provisions were up slightly in late session with higher corn and hogs.

Motorists Asked Not to Stop on Highways

Jefferson City, July 8.—A warning was issued today by the state highway department for motorists not to stop their autos on the highways for repairs following sixty-eight accidents to park machines in which nineteen persons were injured and one killed during the first five months of this year.

The warning declared twenty-two of the parked cars stopped for repairs. Drivers were urged to park their machines at the side of the highway in an effort to cut down the number of accidents.

THIS NURSE NOW HAS GOOD HEALTH

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time and I would not be without it in the house. As I am a children's nurse, I have to be on my feet a great deal and your medicine has helped me wonderfully. I was hardly able to do my housework when I began taking it, and now I am a strong and well woman, able to do all that and go out nursing besides. I have also used the Sanative Wash and found it beneficial."—Mrs. Gertrude L. Stewart, 103 Davis St., Greenfield, Mass.

Valuable for Weakness

"I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a valuable medicine for weakness."—Mrs. J. A. Pietsch, Box 397, Lancaster, Pa.

Hundreds of letters like these are received by the Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Grateful women from Pennsylvania to Washington, from Texas to Illinois and from Rhode Island to Nebraska say that their health has improved since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

4 GAMES ON HOME FIELD

COMETS TO PLAY HERE EACH SUNDAY FOR NEXT MONTH.

CAN BETTER STANDING

Three Of Scheduled Opponents Are In Second Division.—King City Comes First.

Starting with the Union Star game here Monday, July 4th, the Maryville Comets began a series of five games on the home lot.

The other four consecutive games to be played here are:

July 10—King City.
July 17—Bethany.
July 24—Albany.
July 31—Hopkins.

Originally Maryville was scheduled to play at King City Sunday, but on account of a celebration at King City on August 28, when King City was scheduled to play here, the teams swapped Sundays at home.

By making a clean sweep of the series Maryville will have a standing of .571, or eight games won and six lost.

The Comets stand in good stead to win the games on the home lot, as three of the opposing teams are in the second division. Hopkins is the first division team, ranking third this week, and has defeated Maryville twice this year. Bethany is fifth in rank, King City seventh and Albany trails the league. However, Bethany has shown a comeback and has taken four consecutive games to force itself a rung higher than Maryville in the league.

Since the transfer of Thorburn to King City, the Comets regard King City as a difficult customer. Thorburn won for King City this last week. He formerly was pitching for Hopkins.

Henry Buhler will again start on the mound for Maryville and it is understood that Orville Hecker, recently acquired catcher, will remain with the Comets for the combats on the home diamond.

J. M. Palmer Buys Fillies for $2,750

Maryville Owner of Racing String Acquires Two Likely Prospects From Barnard Man.

J. M. Palmer, Maryville negro, who has a string of race horses, has purchased two fillies of R. Giffing of Barnard for $2,750. The horses were shipped to Western Canada.

Palmer visited in Maryville Saturday night with relatives. He had been at Omaha and was on his way to Western Canada for a series of race meets in that territory.

The two fillies purchased by Palmer from Giffing were Bettie Haskell, by Light Of My Life, dam Best Word; and Martha S, by Light of My Life, dam Derry. These two fillies are half sisters to Mahaley, a race horse with which Palmer has had much success.

GAMES SUNDAY

Northwest Missouri League.

King City at Maryville.
Hopkins at Stanberry.
Union Star at Gentry.
Albany at Bethany.

County League.

Graham at Pickering.
Quitman at Bolckow.

Babe Adams to Pitch Sunday for Bethany

Former Big League Hurler Will Take Mound for His Home Town Team Against Albany.

Sunday will be "Adams' Day" at Bethany.

Babe Adams, who has had a brilliant career as hurler in the big leagues, until last year a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates, will do the pitching for the Bethany team of the Northwest Missouri League, the Bethany papers report. He will hurl Sunday against the Albany stickers.

A Bethany paper said:

"Adams probably will be the only big league pitcher to appear in one of the amateur league's games this season. His engagement is made possible by his residence here and by his interest in the Bethany players.

"For several weeks the former Pirate hurler has been working out occasionally in practice with the local club. Most of his work has been devoted to giving the players batting practice and also offering suggestions. He is given much of the credit for the club's rapid improvement in hitting which has brought it from a losing slump to a series of consistent wins.

"Local baseball fans have been trying to have Adams take over the management of the Bethany club. He has remained silent on that proposition, but did consent to pitch one game for his home team."

Committee Gets Its Challenge Accepted

Now Someone Will Have to Set Up a Good Dinner After Golf Match of Two Sextets.

The challenge of that "cocky" tournament committee at the Country Club has been accepted, and the committee and a picked group of other golfers will play it out early next week for the best dinner in town.

For several weeks the tournament committee has had a challenge posted to play any set of business men in town, and, finding no takers, broadened the scope to include any six members of the club.

Ed Dale announced the fore part of this week that they were getting "several bites," and now a sextet has been formed that has right good chances of getting a free dinner, especially since H. F. Lawrence shot a 37 yesterday to break the local record.

The results of the matches will be determined on total points, including pars, birdies, eagles, holes and strokes, on eighteen holes. This is the way the twelve contestants are paired:

H. F. Lawrence vs. F. T. Gillam.
O. M. Watkins vs. B. E. Costello.
Clarence Vogt vs. Ed Dale.
J. C. McDonnell vs. L. M. Eck.
K. P. Phares vs. Martin Lewis, jr.
Paul Jones vs. E. V. Condon.

Gilliam, Costello, Dale, Eck, Lewis and Condon comprise the tournament committee.

Local Golf Record Again Is Lowered

H. F. ("Shorty") Lawrence Makes Round At Country Club In 37, One Under Gillam's Mark.

For the second time this season, the record for the nine holes of the golf course at the Maryville Country Club was lowered yesterday when H. F. Lawrence, athletic director of the State Teachers College, completed the round in 37 strokes.

The former course record of 38 was held by Forrest T. Gillam, who lowered it from 39 only a few weeks ago. Gillam won the recent tournament played at the club and in the the progress of that event defeated Lawrence. But the chances are he couldn't have done it with "Shorty" shooting the game he displayed yesterday afternoon.

The College coach was playing in a foursome with Paul ("Pete") Jones, Joe Price and O. K. Bovard. He shot each hole in par, except on No. 1, which he made in three, one under par; and Numbers 4 and 6, where he was one over. His total score was only one over par and four under bogey.

His card for the nine holes read:

Hole	Par.	Bogey.	Lawrence
1—Expectation	4	4	3
2—The Twister	4	4	4
3—The Baby	3	3	3
4—Long Tom	5	6	6
5—Anticipation	3	4	3
6—Beauty Grove	3	4	4
7—Tricky Slope	5	5	5
8—Helen Hunt	4	5	4
9—Tom's Twin	5	6	5
TOTAL	36	41	37

ARMY ACTIVE IN AIR WORK

PERSISTENT EFFORTS MADE TO GET APPROPRIATIONS.

A FIVE YEAR PROGRAM

Congress Has Authorized 1,800 Planes And 16,650 Men, But Made Drastic Cuts.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles on aviation.

By HARRY W. FRANTZ
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 8.—The Army did not need the object lessons of trans-Atlantic flight to stimulate its interest in the conquest of the air. Since the World War a persistent effort has been in progress to obtain generous congressional support for the Army Air program.

This effort culminated in the Sixty-ninth Congress, on July 2, 1926, when an act was approved "to provide more effectively for the national defense by increasing the efficiency of the Air Corps of the Army of the United States, and for other purposes."

This act, after drastic cuts in the proposals of the Lassiter Air Board, provided for a five-year expansion program, at the end of which time there were to be 1800 effective airplanes, 1650 commissioned officers and 15,000 enlisted men, including 500 flying cadets. Provisions for the first year of this program has already been made.

When the United States entered the World War the national army air strength consisted of 65 officers and 1087 enlisted men, and later reached a maximum strength of 18,089 officers and 133,644 enlisted men.

Provided New Officers.

The Army Air Act provided for the creation of a new post of Assistant Secretary of War for Air, to be appointed by the President, whose prescribed duties were "to aid the Secretary of War in fostering military aeronautics, and to perform such functions as the Secretary may direct." This position is filled by F. Trubee Davison.

The Army Air Corps is under the direct command of Major-General Mason M. Patrick, who will retire soon because of age. Under the law the chief of the corps must be chosen from among officers of fifteen years' commissioned service who have demonstrated by actual service in the corps their qualification for apointment.

One of the most important army air activities since the war has been the removal of the Supply Division (technically known as Material Division) from Washington to Dayton, Ohio, where all of its sections have been consolidated in proximity to the Wright Field, which is the leading center for flight tests.

Three Types Standardized.

The Army Air Corps has practically standardized three types of airplanes—pursuit, training and observation, and is giving much attention to modern bombing-planes. The army has also given much attention to the Loening Amphibian type, which was used in the Pan-American Flight with satisfactory results.

The corps takes special pride in its efforts to promote the safety of flights. It has given special attention to aids to navigation, the demonstration of which is one of the primary motives for the projected army flight to Hawaii. The corps has encouraged the use of parachutes, which must be worn by all of its airmen.

National Guard organizations in various states have been assisted by the Army Air Corps. The Guard squadrons now number sixteen, with 271 officers and 1376 enlisted men. Congress has provided for aid to the National Guards in securing modern equipment.

Assistance To Civilans.

The army air activities also extend to the civilian sphere. Extensive assistance has been given in the designing of civilian types of planes, designing competitions have been encouraged, and civilian inventions have been liberally encouraged. Army planes, have sprayed cotton areas to combat the boll weevil, made forest patrols against fire in the West, and conducted nation-wide work in aerial photography and mapping.

In the more sensational field of activities, the army has sponsored a long series of spectacular "stunts," the most important of which was the Round-the-World Flight of the Douglas Cruisers. Army flyers Lt. Kelly and Lieutenant Macready piloted an army plane on non-stop flight from New York to San Diego, May 2-3, 1923; and Lt. R. L. Maughan made the trans-continental dawn-to-dusk flight, from New York to San Francisco, 2645 miles, in 21 hours and 48 minutes, in July, 1923. The Army has many records for speed and endurance, and its fivers have won laurels by flights to Porto Rico, Panama and South America.

A Fox Camp to Be Held at Barnard

Hunt Enthusiasts Expected to Enter 300 Dogs for Week Commencing September 12.

A fox camp, conducted by the Northwest Missouri Fox Hunters Association, will be established on the picnic grounds at Barnard for one week, commencing September 12, the Barnard Bulletin stated this week.

Roy Cook, secretary of the Barnard Community Club, has received notice from James England of Bethany, president, and J. W. Leazenby of Ridgeway, secretary of the Association, that a large crowd is expected for the fox camp.

Three hundred dogs will be entered in the contests for prizes and the chase is expected to attract the best hounds in the state.

Robertson Guests.

Judge and Mrs. J. F. Robertson have as their guests the latter's sister-in-law, Mrs. Fred Williams of St. Louis, and her cousin, Mrs. W. W. Rose, also of St. Louis. The visitors arrived Wednesday.

Misses Beulah and Eulah Breazile of Rock Port arrived yesterday for a few weeks' visit with Miss Avis Hays, 216 North Walnut.

Beat the Grass

—at its own Game

Of all times; now when grass grows fastest; you'll appreciate the ease of a smooth running lawn mower. The old hard pushing standby of years past has just about proved its unpopularity with every member of the family who could be pressed into service. You can avoid a lot of family discussions with a new mower; and when Junior leaves the front lawn half uncut to engage in activities more to his liking, you won't find it such a chore to finish the job yourself.
